Victoria Palace goes to the theatre with Posiflex touch screen terminals

Leading London theatre, the Victoria Palace has standardized on the Posiflex TP SERIES touch screen terminal for all bar and concession sales areas. Consulting with DED, Victoria Palace was finally adopting Posiflex TP SERIES terminals as their touch screen terminal solution when they found their current system lacked the reporting facilities needed for a front of house operation in a busy theatre environment.

Specifically, the Victoria Palace was looking to provide more competent stock control, increased reporting and accountability procedures and enable consolidated reporting from all sides of the business. Sourcing the hardware to complete this task was down to Peter Morton, Managing Director of Collaborative Software; finding a touch screen terminal solution to work with their current Admit-One software would be the simplest way to meet this goal. They were looking for a new touch screen terminal which had the reliability, a footprint small enough to fit easily into a busy bar area serving up to 1600 people per day and finally a large screen. Ease of use and configuration were also a major consideration to be taken into account, as of course was a strict budget.

Posiflex TP SERIES is shown as the obvious choice to fit this brief and it has proven very popular with the staff at the Victoria Palace. Its combined clarity, ease of use and faultless operation allows them to perform their tasks with no problems at all. A highly reliable all-in-one touch screen terminal, Posiflex TP SERIES features a powerful Celeron 2GHz processor and 40GB HDD as standard. A range of operating systems and interfaces are also supplied as standard, making the TP SERIES a highly adaptable and upgradeable terminal.

Following this installation and previous success stories, Peter Morton has come to favour Posiflex and DED as his “preferred supplier of Epos equipment, thanks to their integrity, helpfulness, flexibility and willingness to get the job done.” The new range of Posiflex touch screen terminals provides hardware solutions to the cinema, theatre, restaurant and hospitality market and is an optimum choice for those customers wishing to install efficient reliable touch screen terminals into the entertainment industry.
